

My Irish Heart Grows
Throughout the Year in Dublin
A Haiku of Months

January

Winter snow floats by
The dancing bunnies freeze still
Blankets of pure white

February

Concrete corn peeks out
From the icy grass so cold
Skies stay blue and clear

March

Green clothed men march by
Trumpets sound and drummers pound
Here comes the parade!

April

Rain pours and showers
Water floods the busy streets
Run to Scioto

May

Leatherlips' nose
Pokes out from the stone figure
As he watches me

June

I see them at the Memorial Tournament
Look, a hole in one!

July

Fireworks go off
Red, white and blue are seen on
The Fourth of July

August

You wee little sir
Enjoy the pure fun of the Irish Festival!

September

School starts up again

Prepare to learn with teachers
Of Best School District

October

Leaves change their colors
Candy wrappers crinkle from
The Spooktacular

November

Eat a turkey meal
Festivals of lights shine at
The Columbus Zoo

December

Santa is coming!
Christmas trees sparkle within
Happy Dublin homes

Now the year is gone
Another one has begun
So my tale is done
